McGrath had no money when he was taken to the hospital, but the police think he may have spent it all before he was assaulted, as he appeared to have been drinking heavily shen he came to the Mulberry street station.

McGrath was thirty-right years old and leaves no children. His fuperal will be held at the house at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

Is it likely that Mallaschutz was out in bare feet? If not, the stockings, which overlapped the drawers, must surely have been stained. There is no blood on his shoes, but he may have worn alippers. The police don't know what he wors, and Mrs. Mallaschutz can't be asked, because she has gone out of town. The detectives seem to have contined all their energy to seeking for the weapon with which the deed was committed. It would, indeed, be a most important clue, and Capit. Gunner said this morning that he would give a month's ealery to find it. This offer reached the ears of the children on Sevenity-Frist street, and now they are all scarching the cellars and closets in the block, trying to find the importance of the case, and yesterday had a long talk with Capitals framer.
